An Economic Times Initiative

The Indian banking industry has shown a tremendous growth in volume and value during the last few decades and is considered as one of the finest systems in the world. It has witnessed a period of consistent growth, with banks along with their customers embracing robust systems and processes. Despite making momentous improvements in all the areas related to financial viability, profitability and competitiveness, there are concerns that banks have not been able to reach and bring vast segment of the population, especially the underprivileged sections of the society, into the fold of basic banking services.

On an average, out of 6,00,000 villages only 74,000 have access to banks. Hence the Government of India has started the national financial inclusion mission called the Pradhan Mantri Jan Dhan Yojna, with the aim to provide bank accounts to majority of the people; and since its inception around 120 million bank accounts have been opened till 23rd January 2015. Keeping this agenda in mind the RBI wishes to have around 600 million new customers by 2020 through various channels mainly by leveraging the use of technology. However, in order to further promote financial inclusion the Reserve Bank of India have been making concrete efforts like nationalization of banks, co-operatives and regional rural banks, lead bank schemes, zero balance BSBDA accounts, simplified bank authorization, know your customer norms, etc to reach the large section of financially excluded Indian population.

The Economic Times further believes that financial inclusion plays a pivotal role in driving away poverty from the country focusing on promoting sustainable development and employment generation. With this in purview, Economic Times is pleased to announce the 3rd Annual Economic Times Financial Inclusion Summit 2015. This conference will seek the participation of senior policy makers and industry leaders under one platform to discuss while assessing the sector's course ahead & figuring out ways to mitigate risks & future-proof business profitability.
